Poorest to receive P5B

Gov't's P500 monthly aid covers 300,000 families

By Michael Lee Ubat in Manila and Vincent Cabrera, Inquirer Northern Luzon

WITH RICE PRICES SOARING GLOBALLY, MORE SUBSIDIES for poor Filipino families in the 20 poorest provinces nationwide are under way, Social Welfare Secretary Esperanza Cabral said yesterday.

Cabral said the income that goes from the subsidized rice being sold to target beneficiaries by the National Food Authority (NFA), the national government has allocated P5 billion this year to fund a P500 monthly welfare subsidy for each of the country's poorest families.

Each family identified by the Department of Social Welfare and Employment (DSWE) would also be entitled to a P300 monthly stipend for each child, but the program would restrict this allocation to only three children in each poor household.

The welfare subsidy is called Alang Pansamang Pilipino (APP), Cabral said on the phone. She described it as "a conditional cash transfer program which provides P500 a month for each family plus P300 for every child over school."

Thus, a maximum subsidy of P1,800 a month would be given "as aid to the extremely poor," through Land Bank of the Philippines "cash cards," she said.

The entire P5-billion fund will cover 300,000 families in the 20 poorest provinces, according to Cabral.

She defined the "poorest of the poor" as those "living below the poverty threshold, which varies from area to area."

Cabral clarified that the APP was launched as early as last year.

"We started giving it last year, but started giving cash gifts this January," she said.

Head Pangasinan, the technical assistance director of the DSWD in the Cordillera, said the APP was initiated before the food crisis erupted, and was originally meant as food aid for children.

DARRYL HOBBIIE DANNY LIM

He's no rebel, just an idealist, says West Point classmate of Lim

By Nikke Dizon

FOR DARRYL HOBBIIE, ONE OF America's popular life coaches, his first trip to the Philippines turned out to be more than just a speaking engagement for a top multinational corporation.

It led to a reunion with a classmate he had not seen in three decades—a friend who, unbeknownst to him, had been rugged on nearly by the government.

When Hobbie saw Danny Lim, Gen. Danilo Lim at the hotel's coast-guard hearing early this month, memories of the years they spent together at the US Military Academy in West Point came flooding back.

"We recognized each other right away. Danny had the same smile, the same kind of intensity. He was always full of interest but he would crack jokes," Hobbie told the Inquirer in a recent interview at the Peninsula Manila hotel, where he was billed for a week-long stay for his "work-life balance" lectures for Procter & Gamble employees.

By Juliet Lahog-Jarillon

FOR TWO MONTHS NOW AND counting, the Association of Major Religious Superiors of the Philippines (AMRSP) has provided more than a safe haven to Rodolfo Lozada Jr., his wife and five young children.

Lozada said that under the Atty. General's administration, it was virtually impossible to pursue complaints of graft and corruption.

"They would show how dysfunctional this government is. We have nowhere to go to report corruption" because the officials in charge of prosecuting graft are beholden to those in power, he said.

IRRI's new miracles: Aerobic, submarine rice

By Fernando del Mundo

(Part of a series)

LOS BAYOS, LAGUNA—THE miracle workers who spelled the Green Revolution of the 1960s in Asia are at the final stages of developing their own miracle—the varieties that can survive flooding, salinity and drought.

And the first to get a crack at the new rice hybrids will be the Philippines, says Robert Zeigler, director general of the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI) headquartered in Los Baños, Laguna.

"The submergence-tolerant materials are just coming out. They haven't been released anywhere. They're just on the point of being ready for farmers now. And the Philippines will be the first to adopt this," says Zeigler.

"Drought is a tougher one to crack, but again, we're doing work on that," he says.

Oil firms hike fuel prices, 8th time this year

By Abigail L. Ho

RUMOR BEBUNG FROM HARBOR: Fuel prices, consumers have in line with yet another hike after oil firms again raised the pump prices of gasoline, diesel and kerosene by 50 centavos a liter.

New player Eastern Petroleum Corp. was first to jack up prices at 12:02 a.m. yesterday, followed by Shell Corp. at 6 a.m. Chevron Philippines Inc. and Total (Philippines) Corp. implemented the same price adjustments at noon the same day. Flying V followed suit at 12:04 a.m. today.

The oil firms cited the increasing prices of oil in the world market for the latest price adjustments, the eighth since the start of the year.

"In the last two months, international fuel prices continued to rise, reflecting a very tight supply situation, with imports curbing down on their international orders in our favor," Eastern Petroleum chair and chief executive Fernando Maranan said.

"Given a substantial international price increase happens now, additional cost recovery by domestic oil companies can be expected at frequent intervals," he added.

Industry data showed that the regional benchmark Dubai crude had surged to an average of $152.50 a barrel in April, $3.62 above higher than in March.

It hit an all-time high of $159.25 a barrel on April 23.

The price of refined gasoline and diesel based on the Motor of Pinar Singapore (MOPS) benchmark for refined petroleum products likewise rose by $2 a barrel and $1 a barrel, respectively, over the previous month's levels.

"World oil prices passed some record high last week, bringing Dubai crude and diesel higher by about 4 percent and 3 percent, respectively, over the prevailing week averages. About 13 dollar over other countries," he said.

Opposition of Petroleum Refining Company (PRC) has reluctance to a higher production input and concern over supply concerns in local oil producing countries were cited as the major factors contributing to the recent oil price surge. The Department of Energy said it is weekly monitoring the oil price.

Cops in escape ordered relieved

THE POLICE RECORDS OF BANK robbery suspect Pedro Rodas were ordered relieved while the investigation into the latter's escape has begun, the Philippine National Police said yesterday.

PNP spokesperson Chief Supt. Nicanor Barzon identified the three policemen as PPO Jovita Canlas, PPO Randy Dapang and PPO Justin Polio.

"We were so sure what their lapses were and whether culpability for the escape would be at their level or whether it would go higher," Barzon stressed.

The three policemen were assigned to Quezon City police station 7 at Camp Pampanga in Calatagan.

Internal Capital Region Police Office chief Director Crayon Baras said he was waiting for the QC police department to submit a report on the escape.

Diga laterally asked some spring Rodas from police custody last Friday on Edsa in Calatagan as he was being transported to the Quezon City jail in Batangas from the PNP station in Calatagan.

Just the day before, Rodas, 32, was pronounced to be guilty in PNP headquarters in Quezon to highlight the Metro Manila police's campaign against bank robbery.

PNP Director General Arsenio Banaag has ordered a massive anti-robbery drive since by Rodas, alleged to be one of the most notorious bank robbers in the country and his cohorts.

Failing in drive, GMA turns to 'soft power' vs rebels

By Michael Lee Udo

PRESIDENT MACHINERY-ARMED NOW seems to employ what she calls "soft power" to end the communist insurgency as she appeared to Congress to affirm an amnesty proclamation she issued last year.

During a meeting on Friday in Marikina City with rebel leaders from Negros Island, President Arroyo said the amnesty was part of her new pragmatic approach—hard and soft power—to end armed conflicts before they turn into civil wars.

Hard power, she explained, was the use of military might whenever and wherever necessary while the "soft approach" was to use the force of development, social services in the people and amnesty provisions.

"The use of this soft power is very key as far as the hard power of military armaments," she said.

"We are not simply addressing immediate security threats and the material needs of development. More importantly, we are seeking peace to the hearts of the people," she said.

However, she said the government would continue to use "hard and soft power" in dealing with the insurgency and extremism. She said congressional confirmation of her amnesty proclamation on Sept. 6, 2007, was needed to enable communist rebels who lay down their arms not only to begin working but to live with their loved ones again.

The President noted that aside from the rebel armaments she met with Friday, many more rebels in Marikina, Marikina and other parts of the country had expressed their willingness to surrender and end their rebellion.

They are waiting for Congress to affirm the amnesty proclamation, she said.

Without the amnesty, many of the rebels are having second thoughts and expressing apprehension that once they give up their armed struggle and create society, they would be charged with rebellion and other criminal complaints, she said.

Under Proclamation 1577, the amnesty will cover members of the Communist Party of the Philippines and its armed wing, the New People's Army, other communist rebel groups and their satellite organizations, the National Democratic Front.

The amnesty will cover the crimes of rebellion and all other crimes "in pursuit of political beliefs," but not crimes against cheating, rape, torture, kidnapping for ransom, and other offenses involving the lives and other crimes of personal ends and violations of international law or humanitarian principles. Even if alleged to have been committed in pursuit of political beliefs.

The amnesty proclamation last year came a week after she provided over 100 seats assembly for General Vargas held in the Armed Forces of the Philippines to "lead" the communist insurgency and the Moro rebellion in Mindanao before her term ended in 2010.

President Arroyo's Arroyo Amnesty bill requires that the members of the Philippine army be given the choice to

The President's renewed call to grant amnesty to communist rebels came on the heels of the admission of outgoing Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Hermenegildo Esgar, as then the military was able to dismantle only eight of the 17 communist guerrilla fronts targeted to be "eradicated" by the first quarter of the year under his watch.

On Thursday, Press Secretary Agnieszka Hancz said President's statement on May 9. He will be replaced by Army Chief Alexander Lim as acting commander.

Esgar was elected to senior ranks, though on retiring 30, the mandatory retirement age in the Armed Forces of the Philippines, but President Arroyo gave him a three-month term extension to ensure the military's momentum against the 40-year-old communist insurgency by 2010.

Communist chief leaders, however, have denounced the government's amnesty proposal as "humane."

Rebel chief and now-party chief Rep. Isko Grapso also questioned the government's amnesty. He said the recent flag of martial charges against him and other communist leaders was a sign of communist government harassment and repression.

Human rights activists charged that the government's "hard power" included extra-judicial killings and other crimes which could never be justified.

RP, Indonesia link up against maritime crime

By Nicanor Naga

PHILIPPINE AND INDOONESIAN POLICE ARE meeting plans to join training operations on the less-attended maritime borders, the Philippine Information Council says.

PHIP Information Chief Rep. Isko Grapso said the training operations would focus on building closer cooperation between the two police forces against crimes in the high seas like piracy, human trafficking and smuggling of illegal drugs.

"The joint operations will be conducted on common borders and sea lanes. Hopefully, these plans will be finalized soon," Grapso told the Inquirer.

PHIP Director General Jerdinio Reyes said the operations were part of Manila efforts to counter international crime and terrorism.

In the past concluded Philippine-Indonesian Joint Committee Meeting in Bali, Indonesia, the two agencies agreed to hold more frequent meetings and joint training programs. Thanks from the PHIP and Indonesian National Police (PNP) adopted a schedule of joint activities for the remaining months of 2008 and early 2009.

Joint activities lined up for this year include the PHIP-Indonesian Joint Committee Meeting on Operations in September in Indonesia, a PHIP-Indonesian Workshop-Command/Officer Exchange in November, and training exercises similar to the joint PHIP-PNP Training held in Zamboanga City in November 2007.

Reyes also said both parties had agreed to hold quarterly joint operations meetings to be held alternately by the PHIP and PNP. The next joint committee quarterly meeting will be held in Cebu City in May.

The PHIP-PNP alliance had attended the Joint Committee Meeting on April 26-27 was headed by Deputy Director General Hermenegildo Esgar, the PHIP deputy chief for operations.

"The meeting's purpose was to strengthen intelligence and information sharing," Reyes said.

SOCCO, the PHIP and PNP signed a memorandum of Understanding on Cooperation in Preventing and Combating Transnational Crimes.

Since the 2003 PHIP-PNP accord, both parties have held several committee meetings for joint police operations, including the conduct of joint patrol operations along maritime borders and guidelines to the latest state of criminal cooperation.

Currently, the PHIP is cooperating with its Indonesian counterparts in conducting a joint task force of known members of the al-Qaida-linked Islamic militant network. In such capacity by assisting Indonesian police in acquiring PHIP profiles of its members known to be operating in the Philippines.

'Bongbong' bill would exclude Spratlys from baselines

Less intense to questioning

Marcus said he believed the inclusion of the shawl and the lipat by a Kalyan group from the lineages ME would make the country's marriage markings "stronger" than it would be for people in questioning by the international community.

Marston said the earlier proposal, House Bill No. 3339, was "totally flawed." He said ordering the disputed islands to the low-tide line would run counter to the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, which states that the country signed and ratified in 1984.

To exclude the Spanish group is the practice

Mr. Clarke allows anthropologists to draw straight lines to join the different branches of their territory but notes that humans, with few exceptions, cannot fly more than 125 miles long. The southwest point is the favorite group to which a human may be drawn. Branches are, additionally, to 150 and 200 miles away from the species.

Without equivalent barriers, the country would get international competition for the 200-mile exclusive economic zone, which is reserved for the Brazilian, Mota said.

Workers buck lifting of ban to Jordan

The Learning-Aiming

A MIGRANT WORKERS' GROUP based in the Middle East yesterday opposed the lifting of the ban on the development of offshore oil and mining reserves.

Ministers said the 20 standard EPRs should be required first.

Aggravate said Filipino diplomats and labor officials should also discuss with their Jordanian counterparts issues such as "Shielding the content of local treaties of Filipino domestic helpers without putting in place country mechanisms that will ensure the protection of overseas Filipino workers' rights and welfare is another and without provision of legislative safeguards increases the OFWs, as well as allowing OFWs to form unions and associations as provided in the United Nations Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families."

Machene said the displacement has no domestic helpers who could be sent to various parts of their families.

MALACANANG PALACE (MANILA)

...greeting to the Philippine Dental Association as you hold your 100th Annual Convention and Scientific Program.

I am proud of our year-long-standing commitment in upholding the dental health of our people and in upholding the quality of dental services in our country. Indeed, this event becomes the national venue for dental practitioners and procedures and technology in dentistry.

Jose Araya, "Taking Philippine Dentistry to the Next Level" certainly exemplifies your determination in being Philippine Dentistry to new heights and places it to the demands of the 21st century.

(Jose Araya is now at Malacanang)

SENATE OF THE PHILIPPINES

In developing countries such as the Philippines, the availability of quality dental and oral healthcare services is of crucial importance. Good oral health contributes to overall well-being, contributes to increased productivity and is conducive to positive social interaction. It is my hope that someday, majority of our Filipinians would enjoy oral health of this level.

It will take us more a month from a partnership, an undertaking which aims to protect and discover the latest breakthroughs in oral care for the benefit of our countrymen. I am sure to announce that there is a considerable example of such a partnership.

With the Philippine Dental Association's contribution of its members' year, our previous dental group will hold the 100th PDA Annual Convention and Scientific Meeting with the theme "Taking Philippine to the Next Level." The PDA's effort in reflecting of what all dentists should work for - excellence.

This milestone is marked by another noteworthy development: Philippine company's unity in Corporate, making of Super-supermarket partnered with the PDA for this year's convention.

Since its inception, Lantigua advanced quality and affordable dental care for Filipinos that encompasses broad impact. By partnering with the PDA, Lantigua will take its commitment to a higher level and will add a more active role in raising awareness on oral health.

By working together, Lantigua Corporation and the PDA will ensure that dental oral and healthcare in the country will be as good, if not better than the rest of the world. There are lots of PDA's work, the best to what they do, leading countries to the end stage where it strength is unity.

For the proponents of improved dental care in the country - you all deserve an accolade for taking on this noble after challenging task.

Let us be all that we can be for this country and let us begin by working together to ensure a bright, happy smile for generations of Filipinos to come.

Respectfully signing below

On Philippine Dental Association is celebrating the Centennial Year of Organized Dentistry. It is in this year that as the Current Chairman and President Elect, I am so privileged presents my fellow Dentists in perhaps its this year's 200th PDA Annual Convention & Scientific Meeting which will be held on April 27 to May 2, 2008 at the SMX Convention Center inside the Mall of Asia.

As I share the floor with "Taking Dentistry to the Next Level" aptly expresses the various programs that I intend to introduce to the all dentists towards a better future for Philippine Dentistry. Oral Health Awareness is one of the main focus of this year, for it is my desire to properly educate our future dentists that maintaining good oral health is equally important as maintaining a healthy body.

It is truly great pleasure that I met my dear colleagues in the dental profession to take this opportunity to their skills through the lectures of some prominent foreign and local dentists who are experts in their field. The PDA dentists is eager to update their knowledge which will enable them to be at par with contemporary and progress dentistry for the Philippines in the 21st Century. There is also gathering of dental leaders which will showcase the latest dental technology.

This year, we would like to express our gratitude to Lamorte Corporation for opening another door for partnership with PDA in delivering quality education to our dentists.

Team finds rare cloud rat breed after 112 yrs

By Delmar Cordero
 Special Staff Writer

MANILA CITY—A TEAM OF American and Filipino biologists recently found a rare breed of cloud rat at the Mt. Pulag national park in Benguet, which was first seen by a British scientist 112 years ago.

Dr. Lawrence Henson from London and senior and lead of members in the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, identified the animal born on Friday as the "dwarf cloud rat," a rare breed endemic to the Cordillera.

Henson, whose team has been studying the cloud rat in the Cordillera since 2005, revealed at the rat's introduction saying, "It is the second known capture had by biologists for so many years."

He said the rat was dead when the team found it. Henson's team immediately preserved the rat and prepared it for shipment to Chicago for further studies.

Great biodiversity

"The Philippines may have the greatest number of unique biological diversity within its size, of any country in the world," Henson said upon his return to Manila.

Samuel Peralta, former senior of Henson and Henson's former co-director in the Cordillera, said the cloud cloud rat's discovery could boost government efforts to protect the region's threatened biodiversity and natural forests.

He said the findings of Henson's team reveal that there is still a wide range of new animal life worth saving in the region's mountainous forests.

Conservation researchers associate of the National Museum and Henson's former leader, said the cloud cloud rat, known by a scientific name Carpenteria melanura, was found in a patch of natural forest near Mt. Pulag.

"It was found in the canopy of a large tree, in a large, highland forest covered by a thick layer of moss, orchids and ferns about five meters above ground," he said.

Beautiful animal

Henson described the rat as "a really beautiful animal with dense, soft reddish brown fur with a black mask around its large dark eyes, small round ears, a broad and short snout and a long tail covered with dark spots."

It weighed 140 grams, he said.

Mr. Polay is a 14-year-old student of 2,912 meters above sea level. It resembles Benguet, Dagupan and Marikina. Henson's team, led by Mr. Polay, said the rat's discovery could boost government efforts to protect the region's threatened biodiversity and natural forests.

Henson said the rat's discovery could boost government efforts to protect the region's threatened biodiversity and natural forests.

"The team worked on the theory that the rat was probably found in a highland forest with many more forest and from an elevation of about 2,200 to 2,500 meters above sea level."

"The rat's discovery was the first evidence of such rat," Henson said.

Henson said: "Now that we know where to look for them, it will be possible to learn more."

"The cloud rat was one of the most spectacular forms of adaptive radiation by mammals anywhere in the world, with at least 12 species occupying niches from 1.8 to 11.4 kg of body weight in the Philippines," he said.

Galapagos

"They are the prime examples of why biologists refer to the country as the 'Galapagos of Asia,'" Henson said.

Henson was referring to the Galapagos archipelago found west of Ecuador in South America that is known for its own variety of endemic species.

John Whitfield, a British scientist, first saw the cloud cloud rat in 1896 when the indigenous people living within the Mt. Pulag national park brought him some live specimens.

Mr. Polay, who lives in Mt. Pulag, Benguet, provides the biologists by the region's major forest reserves—Agos, Chino, Bana and Marikina.

But the DENR had identified the public watershed as rapidly deteriorating due to the expansion of agriculture in the area.

Henson said Whitfield did not know anything about the animal's ecology but the animal's life shows the long-term continuity of biologists.

They could be partly based on the disappearance of the species in 1896. Once where the rat was found," he said.

Research on the rat's existence shows how life where the species was found likely to be in danger, he said.

Henson said the Cordillera is known as the habitat of endangered species, like the cloud rat.

The rats were identified as "cloud rat" since they found in the forest, or cloud forest, Henson said.

Rat's home

Mr. Polay is also known as the only place that hosts the cloud cloud rat species. One of them is the higher valley cloud rat, locally called "banao."

In '08 year that food has become the world's top supply of New Zealand's national food, eating more in the Southern Hemisphere's winter.

Food has moved around the world since European immigrants first came from China, but winter in the world is in the Southern Hemisphere's winter.

Efficient global transport. Increasingly, the world's food transport services make it possible to bring food before it spoils from distant places where labor costs are lower, that the production of agricultural products is not just from China to Manila but supply and distribution chains that go the other way. Like the U.S. Meat, Chicken and Eggs—just to take one example.

United States. Long-standing trade agreements, but for international freight carried by sea and air is not just. Now many countries, environmental scientists and politicians say it is time to make shipping and shipping pay for the pollution, through taxes on other measures.

Europe is poised to change that.

This year the European Commission in Brussels, Belgium, announced that all freight supply rights will be out of the European Union and all but the European Union will be included in the world's food supply chain program by 2012, meaning ports will have to be paid for the pollution they produce.

Making money

The commission is negotiating with the global shipping organizations, the International Maritime Organization, over various solutions to reduce greenhouse gases if there is no action by year's end, and freight will also be included in Europe's emissions trading program, said Ralf Heide, a spokesman for the European Commission's Environment Directorate.

terms.

"We're really ready to make a move on this—no pay for the use of the sea."

Shippers have vigorously fought the idea of levying a transportation tax, saying that if some countries imposed their own version of the shipping tax, it would result in a loss of global trade, creating an uneven playing field for all.

Trade advantage

It would also give countries that kept the exemption a huge trade advantage. Some European countries hope voluntary green measures—like a tax on shipping the product's carbon footprint to reduce carbon emissions—will drive the movement to even lower and regulation.

Pharex snaps Harbour Center's PBL winning streak

By James W. Price

A FOURTH-QUARTER BUST allowed Pharex to snap Harbour Center's undefeated record.

The Harbor Center team, which scored 104 points in a 99-87 victory to clinch a quarterfinal berth in the PBL, suffered a fourth-quarter collapse in the 100-90 loss to Pharex.

Harbour Center, who opened with 20 points, combined with Jose Alcala, Jose Gu and Francis Flores in a 14-4 run in the last four minutes that turned the 100-80 deficit into a 100-87 edge.

A win without a game-winning shot in the fourth quarter was a first for Harbour Center in 12 PBL seasons. The team's 12th win was the first since the team's first win in 1991.

"It took a lot of time to be able to score a win that's not just a win," said coach

Chico Tan after the Harbor team improved to 7-7. "The team and pressure defense kept us very strong and helped defend our edge on offense."

During the game, Harbour Center's Jose Gu and Jose Gu, who scored a career-high 20 points, were the team's top scorers.

Jose Gu, who had a career-high 31 points, tied for eighth place in the Philippine Basketball League's first quarter.

Harbour Center also scored a quarterfinal berth after winning the quarterfinal performance of Harbour Center.

Despite the loss, the team still remained in the quarterfinal stage along with the other teams.

PBA All-Stars 'invade' Bacolod

BIRMINGHAM CITY—THE FLIGHT FROM Manila to Bangkok was very short and uneventful. We had barely undressed our feet before the pilot announced over the PA system that we were entering our destination.

Other big angles in Europe's past year (Singapore and Taiwan), the FWA All-Time weekend is going to one of the most progressive cities in the South. Istanbul has been tagged as the most business-friendly city in the Middle East, and so much is the most ideal place to live in according to the United Nations Human Development Index.

The loan-attached city official said the Alliance was originally scheduled to be held next year but they had postponed the schedule to avoid a year overlap in connection with the Olympic Festival.

As soon as the plane landed at the crowded National Airport, the tiny celebrity was mobbed on the tarmac. Cuba Fanci is right with us, was whisked off to his suite, his father's home, with his small retinue.

Even while at the Miami-Dade County airport, Baby Jessica Tap, who had turned a year old last April 19, had attracted as much attention. Since he could not sign autographs for his fans, his handlers agreed to have him photographed with them instead.

All of us headed for the All Stars were sure that Baby Jannet was headed in the same direction where her father James Jr. was going in company in the three-point shotgun and the fourth versus South All Star game.

NESTEA BEACH VOLLEYBALL FINALS

S'western, Foundation rule

By Francis T. Ochoa

BORACAY—AN ADDINGING NEW FINALLY came to an end for the champions of the 2008 Nestea Beach Volleyball National Finals.

Southwestern University took the longest possible route to payback and picked the perfect moment to end a season-long pursuit by capturing their third University of the Visayas, 18-21, 21-19, 15-11, in the women's division final yesterday at the Filip Amusement Center.

"We finally got them," said former FIVB star and current coach Joseph Reyes, who had talked of revenge right on the very first day of this annual showdown of the sport's best college squads in the country. "We couldn't beat them in Cebu, we couldn't beat them anywhere and it took us seven days to finally beat them here."

The Lady Colons, who were born into this season's tournament last June following a "three-peat" that ended in 2005, lost in the Grand Finals to two major contenders from the west and one rivalry-ridden local rival (Ferdinand Reyes and Joseph Reyes) to finish the overall season's championship of the Visayas, 18-21, 21-19, 15-11, 15-8 victory over University of Southern Philippines Foundation's Anne Marie Sison and Joseph Reyes for the team title.

"This is worth the long wait," Reyes said. "We had to wait."

Foundation University's Ferdinand Reyes wanted to take his team from the FIVB triumph.

The 21-year-old marketing major had waited four years to win a title on the grandstand side of the women's season-long pursuit and watched the wait stretched another six before his post-wedding with Anne Marie Sison (married on a 21-15, 16-21, 15-8 victory over University of Southern Philippines Foundation's Anne Marie Sison and Joseph Reyes for the team title.

Since meeting a professional designer to help her design a few years ago, she has had the chance to work on various projects both on a stage or in front of the camera. But Martin's main room work requirement is to explore uncharted territory. Her clients wanted her to create their new three-story, four-bedroom Cavite home in Cavite, Cavite, into a modern-day tropical abode.

"It was my first time to do a tropical house," said Martin, owner and president of Martin Interiors (www.martininteriors.com). "I'm more at home with modern houses, but my clients wanted I do it."

Part of the deal, another first for Martin, was her job to design a private spa on the ground floor.

Houses on a hill

Since the house, one of several identical houses overlooking the sea in San Lazaro, Philippines, is built on a hill, its second floor is actually the first floor.

"Due to limited space, I had to design a pair of massage beds with built-in compartments," said Martin. "Right from maintaining space, well-designed compartments found their way."

Martin collaborated with suppliers such as Studio for Furniture pieces, Simply Asian for linen and drapery, and Studio 11 for custom Roman shades made of fabric, pine and rattan.

She also secured home decor for adding her affordable look, mostly from Cavite's. The tropical theme extends to various areas such as the dining room, the living room and dining area, as well as the two-story dining area made of wood and metal rods.

One of Martin's main challenges was to come up with a heavy inspired setting without allowing it to degenerate into a pile of boring patchwork.

After all, the owner's looking for a weekend getaway in the couple and their two daughters intend to use the house as their home base. Thanks to the designer's attention to detail, the house became a home.

Neutral colors

Using various shades of brown, beige, cream and orange was a given. Instead of boring it, at that, Martin put emphasis in subtle areas using throw pillows and table runners.

"But would have looked too modern," she said. "My clients, especially the husband, want a bit of classic to add light and air, but when they can have orange added to the master wing, they instantly warmed up to the idea."

Martin also chose various textures with an accessible effect. But no second pillow, cushions and throws found in private areas. The chair cushions for a daughter's bedroom.

The designer's touch is also evident in the master bedroom through built-in shelves and a wooden headboard flanked by shelves of laminated bamboo. The white headboard also comes with a pair of light-colored pillows and a throw.

Martin used wood pieces in the living room in the form of furniture and accessories made from a combination of maple, oak and pine.

The living room armchair made of wood, laminated bamboo, orange shell and fabric is actually a mini bed and not an entertainment center.

A series of cylindrical bamboo chairs, also in the living room is now selling in units. The living chairs, stainless steel, stainless steel, were influenced from Chinese and Indian.

"So much so I want my designs to be sold and used," said Martin. "I always manage to find ways of adding an element as new to make them a bit good. They probably do the most to make it work."

THE ACTRESS design consultant has found a new way to express herself through interior design.

MARTIN uses a huge mirror to add a touch of space to the narrow dining room area. Table runner and placemats give the setting a modern twist.

IF YOU'RE TIRED OF THE USUAL beach itinerary, here's a more accessible, stress-free alternative.

There's more to Laguna in the south of Metro Manila than its famous beaches and hot spring resorts. A one-day tour gives us a glimpse of five local attractions in the towns of Pila, Paganan, Lucena, Davao and Lila.

Pila

First stop was Pila, in the center of the town of Laguna. Here, known for its historical significance, the town has long been admired as a center of culture and trade since as far back as the pre-Hispanic period. The Pila Historical Society Foundation, Inc. should be commended for its efforts to preserve the town's heritage. In May 2008, the town was declared by the National Historical Institute as a National Historical Landmark. Casa Riera, one of the foundation's members, brought us around the town.

The Pila Church, dedicated to St. Isidoro of Seville, is a popular pilgrimage point for devotees.

Another attraction in this town is the Pila Museum. The 100-kg property has a collection of the town's treasures and artifacts. The museum is open to the public from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. with entrance fees at P10 (adults) and P10 (children).

The centuries-old house along Real Street in Pila, a remnant of the Spanish colonial period, has also become a major attraction for visitors.

Paganan

From Lucena, drive down Pila in Paganan. Here, you can find an array of locally selling native delicacies for purchase.

Best bread? Paganan residents may be familiar with the town's Best Bakery on Real Street (049-4884-221). The 50-year-old bakery, known for its quality breads, is owned and managed by Milagros Layon. Its specialties are the Bolillo House, sold at P10 per piece; Rosas de la Casa, sold at P20 per piece; and the signature bread of the 'tortones' rolled into a P20 per piece.

Best halo-halo? One favorite destination of halo-halo aficionados is along Taling's Halo-Halo, also in Paganan. Belonging to the late Taling, who runs the halo-halo business, revealed that the freshness and proper ratio of ingredients are what account for the unique taste of their halo-halo. Ingredients include beans, mango, macapuno, nata de coco, ube, leche flan, milk, fruit, and the halo-halo's 'sauce' ingredients, the caramelizing sugar. The Halo-Halo is sold at P20 per glass.

Best ice cream? At 73, Emma Zamora Aguilar continues to do what she does best for more than 50 years now—sell ice cream cakes and delicacies. The owner and manager 'Mama Emma's Kakanin and Special Baking'.

The store is famous for its biko, kakanin, and biko with biko, among other cakes and biko with biko. It also sells other People love Callalily for its songs that reflect innocence and a sense of summer. Sometimes the album goes overboard, as in the case of a show his daughter's daughter, herself a wannabe rock singer, who reportedly left her over her head in love with Callalily and was seen from behind in a bikini.

E-mail from Pinay Madonna in UK

By Reynold San Diego Jr.

THE E-MAIL WAS SIGNED simply: Mado.

That's the nickname of Madonna Dennis, the Filipino singer who impressed audiences and judges alike on the reality contest "Pinay's Got Talent (PGT)." She has passed the first round with flying colors and has moved on to the next round.

Since being crowned on the tube on April 18, the winner of her performance on PGT has gotten over 200,000 hits.

Before hitting the big time, however, Mado had gone through a long journey.

In a series of e-mails sent to Dennis Entertainment, Mado related a story concerning a job by another Filipino who chose to work abroad, although the offer gave benefits all dotted up, life as an OFW is far from glamorous, she confessed.

The 34-year-old first wife moved out to Singapore, where she performed at Grand Puck Club and Club Metro. Her father (Ray Dennis) refused to a phone interview rather with the location.

Upon her return from Singapore, she was recognized by high school friend Pina Banao in my last look in the new house, the United Kingdom.

With relatives who she moved to Penang in the UK in 2005. "Being a student, I was allowed only 20 hours of part-time work (weekend)," she noted.

Back-breaking grind

Since going to a single room all her own, she worked 12-hour shifts in a night club.

"I think the last in sleeping shifts," she recalled. "I had to clean and serve at the same time. It was hard work. Sometimes I had to sleep on the floor to get home."

She also worked as a Chinese Fruit Center where she also worked for "13 hours straight."

On Pina said Mado didn't mind the back-breaking grind. "She used to say: 'When do we study in Britain College,' she worked at something similar at McDonald's. I'd say I used to work mostly with Mado. I saw Philippines and Tropicana. She seemed to help in our mother's house."

Mado admitted that her part-time job in the UK wasn't enough to make ends meet.

She kept her two girlfriends in mind.

"She found love, love, love, love, love on the Internet," she related. "They were looking for a girl friend. I passed the interview and started with them."

Her management company, however, decided to let Mado be a solo act.

"That was how I got a work permit," she said. "But I had to go back to Manila to complete my papers. So I went home in July 2007."

That's the last time she saw her two daughters, Val, 7, and Ysa, 6, who are now staying with her parents (Ray and Tina) in their Queens City home.

Best performer tag

Until the Internet connection in their house got disrupted last month, Ray said that her girlfriends communicated with their mother by chatting on Skype messenger every night. Now they just text and call each other regularly.

Between July 2007 and February 2008, when she auditioned for PGT, Mado sang in a string of shows and concerts.

She got good reviews from those who saw and was declared "best performer" on at least two occasions.

Ray said his daughters were naturally drawn to competitive like PGT because she had passed and topped several local singing contests in a kid.
